About this Opportunity

Canadian Feed the Children is actively implementing a transformative strategic plan and is in search of a Temporary Director for Indigenous Programs to guide this crucial phase over an 18-month maternity leave period. This role is central to enhancing our partnerships with 27 Indigenous communities across Canada, ensuring the development and delivery of impactful, community-led programs that align with our new strategic goals and directions. We are seeking a candidate with strong connections to Indigenous communities and a proven track record in strategic thinking and relationship building. Your expertise will be pivotal in collaborating with the Development Team to mobilize resources, develop high-quality program proposals, and align initiatives with community priorities. Additionally, your role includes building alliances and advocating for policies that support the interests of Indigenous communities in key CFTC programming areas. This position is an exceptional opportunity for someone passionate about making a meaningful impact in Indigenous communities through strategic program leadership. We strongly encourage First Nations, Metis, Inuit Peoples in Canada, or Indigenous Peoples of North America, to apply and self-identify in their applications.
