Through our partnership with Indigenous.Link's Diversity Recruitment Program, we post jobs for Canada's largest corporations and government departments. With our vertical job search engine technology, Indigenous Job Seekers can search thousands of Indigenous-specific jobs in just about every industry, city, province and postal code.

Careers.Indigenous.Link offers the hottest job listings from some of the nation's top employers, and we will continue to add services and enhance functionality ensuring a more effective job search. For example, during a search, job seekers have the ability to roll over any job listing and read a brief description of the position to determine if the job is exactly what they're searching for. This practical feature allows job seekers to only research jobs relevant to their search. By including elements like this, Careers.Indigenous.Link can help reduce the time it takes to find and apply for the best, available jobs.

The team behind Indigenous.Link is dedicated to connecting Indigenous Peoples of Canada with great jobs along with the most time and cost-effective, career-advancing resources. It is our mission to develop and maintain a website where people can go to work!

Description

Street Health is a not-for-profit organization in downtown east Toronto that works to improve the health and wellbeing of people who are homeless and underhoused by addressing the social determinants of health through its innovative nursing, mental health, harm reduction, overdose prevention, safer supply, outreach and identification replacement programs and through its advocacy, education and research.

It is within this context that Street Health welcomes applications and nominations for the appointment of its Executive Director.

Reporting to the Board of Directors, the Executive Director ("ED") will provide visionary and inclusive leadership and champion the interests of people who are experiencing homelessness, people who use drugs, and/or people who are living with a mental health diagnosis. The ED will serve as an active, engaged, and hands-on leader, and will be a passionate and effective advocate for social justice and equity issues. The ED will create and execute strategic and operational plans, oversee finance, administration and human resources, execute fundraising goals, build on and develop important relationships in the community and with key stakeholders, and work effectively with a committed staff, management team and Union.

As the ideal candidate, you have played a leadership role in the not-for-profit, health, or social services sector where relationship building, and partner development is evidenced. You are a strong people leader and manager and have successfully led people and strategy in a rapidly changing and complex frontline operational environment. You have experience working with a Board of Directors coupled with experience in fundraising, financial planning and oversight and human resources. You operate collegially and collaboratively and possess exemplary interpersonal skills, communication skills, and advocacy skills. Candidates must have a strong understanding and commitment to social justice and principles of anti-racism, health equity, diversity, inclusion and accessibility. Experience in and knowledge of community-based health or social service provision, harm reduction, mental health and/or health equity is essential. Knowledge of the local environment, including Street Health's many partner agencies would be an asset. Experience working in a unionized environment is an asset, as is a graduate degree in a related field or equivalent combination of education and experience.
