Through our partnership with Indigenous.Links Diversity Recruitment Program, we post jobs for Canada's largest corporations and government departments. With our vertical job search engine technology, Indigenous Job Seekers can search thousands of Indigenous-specific jobs in just about every industry, city, province and postal code.

Careers.Indigenous.Link offers the hottest job listings from some of the nation's top employers, and we will continue to add services and enhance functionality ensuring a more effective job search. For example, during a search, job seekers have the ability to roll over any job listing and read a brief description of the position to determine if the job is exactly what they're searching for. This practical feature allows job seekers to only research jobs relevant to their search. By including elements like this, Careers.Indigenous.Link can help reduce the time it takes to find and apply for the best, available jobs.

The team behind Indigenous.Link is dedicated to connecting Canadian Indigenous Peoples with great jobs along with the most time and cost-effective, career-advancing resources. It is our mission to develop and maintain a website where people can go to work!

Description

The College of Arts and Science invites applications from outstanding emerging or established Indigenous scholars for a fulltime, tenure-track position at any rank in any scholarly discipline represented in the College of Arts and Science (<http://artsandscience.usask.ca/>). Discipline and research areas are open.

Located on the banks of the kisisk?ciwani-s?piy (also known as the South Saskatchewan River), the University of Saskatchewan is part of a millennia-long tradition of people gathering on these banks to teach, to learn, and to build community. The College of Arts and Science has committed to increase the proportion of Indigenous faculty members to at least 15% by 2027, thus reflecting the current demographics of Saskatchewan. We also commit to supporting these Indigenous scholars in building community, collaboration, and career success within our College. This is part of our College's transformative journey of Indigenization and reconciliation. We invite interested Indigenous scholars to be part of that journey. This year, we will fill at least two positions with Indigenous scholars.

Interviews of qualified candidates and recommendations for appointment will be the responsibility of individual departments within the College. Applicants, therefore, should indicate the department in which they seek appointment. Prospective applicants should choose their disciplinary area of expertise; this position is not presently designated for the Department of Indigenous Studies. Hiring decisions will be based on the applicants' academic qualifications, record and strengths, along with their potential and willingness to support the strategic priorities of the relevant department and the department's ability to support the candidate.

The University of Saskatchewan is committed to employment equity and diversity, and Indigenous engagement is a strategic priority. The University of Saskatchewan relies on section 48 of The Saskatchewan Human Rights Code to give preference in employment to a person of Indigenous ancestry for this position. This position is exclusively aimed at individuals self-identifying as an Indigenous person. Candidates are asked to self-identify in their application and are also encouraged to complete an Employment Equity Survey as part of their application process. Self-identifying Indigenous scholars are expected to share how their Indigenous heritage and community connections will inform their teaching and research activities.

The University of Saskatchewan's main campus is situated on Treaty 6 Territory and the Homeland of the Métis, and has committed to becoming an "outstanding institution of research, learning, knowledge-keeping, reconciliation, and inclusion with and by Indigenous peoples and communities." The University of Saskatchewan is located in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, a city with a diverse and thriving economic base, a vibrant arts community and a full range of leisure opportunities. The University has a reputation for excellence in teaching, research and scholarly activities and offers a full range of undergraduate, graduate, and professional programs to a student population of over 24,000. With over 30,000 Indigenous residents, the city is also a centre of Indigenous cultural, social, artistic, and intellectual activity. Saskatchewan is the province with second-highest proportion of Indigenous people in Canada and offers many opportunities for scholars to engage with a diversity of Indigenous communities.

The College of Arts and Science is the University's largest college and home to more than 60 academic programs. We have had a department of Indigenous Studies since 1982 and have strong Indigenous programs and high-achieving Indigenous scholars in many of our departments. We are also home to more than 10,000 students, with over 1500 Indigenous students.

Qualifications:

Applications will be accepted from those who self-identify as Indigenous and have a terminal degree in their discipline (or are in the last year of a program leading to such a degree). We are seeking Indigenous candidates who have demonstrated an ability or potential to engage in research, scholarly or artistic work, to be effective classroom teachers and graduate student mentors, and can contribute to our mission of Indigenization and reconciliation directly (for example, through your research, teaching, role modelling, community engagement and/or leadership).

Salary and Benefits:

Salary bands for this position for the 2019-2020 academic year are as follows:

Assistant Professor: $94,459 to $113,509; Associate Professor: $113,509 to $132,559; and Professor: $132,559 to $154,784.

This position includes a comprehensive benefits package which includes a dental, health and extended vision care plan, pension plan, life insurance (compulsory and voluntary), academic long term disability, sick leave, travel insurance, death benefits, an employee assistance program, a professional expense allowance, and a flexible health and wellness spending program.

Other

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens and permanent residents will be given priority.
