What can I expect to do in this role

In this role, you will:

- Bring a digital mindset to lead and manage large-scale, complex, high-profile and high-risk I&IT projects to deliver on various key government priorities, including bringing simpler, better and faster services to Ontario.
- Provide leadership to high-performing teams of technical and business professionals in a matrix environment enabling agile approaches (i.e. act as a Scrum Master and support Scrum teams in delivering on simultaneous initiatives).
- Consult with clients, stakeholders, and senior management regarding project goals, providing advice and recommendations to ensure effective project delivery.
- Ensure systems are implemented according to established methodologies and meet clients' business requirements while remaining in line with budgets, schedules and scope.
- Develop, monitor, and maintain project management-related artefacts.
- Periodically move onto new project assignments located at different sites throughout the GTA and Oshawa.

Location(s): Oshawa, Toronto

How do I qualify

Agile Project Management Knowledge and Skills:

- You have demonstrated hands-on experience applying agile methodologies throughout the entire project lifecycle, from concept to release, as a means to plan for iterative digital product development and user involvement (i.e. oversee and manage sprints, sprint planning, stand-ups meetings, retrospectives, and support Scrum teams in delivering on simultaneous initiatives).
- You have extensive experience developing and managing the full range of project management artefacts, including charters, integrated project plans, multi-year project budgets, backlogs and sprint plans.
- You have experience applying agile best practices such as work prioritization, story mapping, user story creation, release planning, retrospectives, etc., to ensure successful delivery of key initiatives.
- You are a hands-on leader who can analyze project environments to identify and proactively address potential risk events and issues, developing and implementing mitigation strategies.
- You have expert-level knowledge of the project management life cycle, project portfolio management, and project management principles and best practices, successfully leading agile projects to expected outcomes.

Leadership and Change Management Skills:

- You have a proven track record of successfully leading strategic, complex, large-scale enterprise-wide agile I&IT projects.

- You have experience collaborating with a multi-disciplinary team to translate the vision into a backlog and lead the team through smooth and continuous delivery.
- You have experience working in conjunction with team members and stakeholders to manage changes to technical requirements, business requirements and schedule of the project.
- You can foster an inclusive, diverse, and effective working environment for teams of talented professionals, knowing the best ideas come from everywhere and everyone.

Consultation, Communication and Collaboration Skills:

- You can lead and develop high-quality communication materials, such as briefing notes, presentations, and reports, and present these materials to positively influence outcomes with clients, stakeholders, and senior or executive management.

- You are an advocate for achieving accelerated outcomes by increasing collaboration, innovation and promoting adaptability and flexibility of team members and stakeholders to overcome project obstacles.
- You have demonstrated strong political acuity and negotiation skills to obtain buy-in from team members, senior management and executive stakeholders.
