The special mission of Ryerson University is the advancement of applied knowledge and research to address societal need, and the provision of programs of study that provide a balance between theory and application and that prepare students for careers in professional and quasi-professional fields. It is the most applied-to university in Ontario relative to available spaces and its reputation with business and community leaders continues to rise. It is clearly a university on the move. The Executive Director, Faculty Affairs provides leadership and expert advice in the effective management and resolution of academic labour relations issues and the administration of academic collective agreements.

The ideal candidate has a depth of experience with the principles of employee or labour relations, related legislation, and a strong understanding of human resource principles and processes. As the ideal candidate, you have relevant progressive experience in labour and employee relations in a unionized environment, and ideally inside an academic institution. You have demonstrated labour relations success through your experience in leading strategic collective bargaining, managing grievance procedures, conducting investigations and proposing and managing remedial action. The leadership style and attributes which will benefit the successful candidate include being a strong communicator, collaborative and collegial, a strong advocate of equity, diversity and inclusion and an engaging problem solver, who is a respectful and good listener. The ideal candidate embodies what Ryerson is known for: collegiality, innovation and entrepreneurship, leadership, nimbleness and responsiveness, and equity, diversity and inclusion. Ryerson University welcomes those who have demonstrated a commitment to upholding the values of equity, diversity, and inclusion and will assist us to expand our capacity for diversity in the broadest sense.
